Conlin Bedard LLP Welcomes Transportation Lawyer Ian S. MacKay

Conlin Bedard LLP, a federal regulatory law firm based in Ottawa, welcomes Ian S. MacKay as Counsel to the firm. Ian is one of Canada's top transportation lawyers dealing with complex economic, regulatory and policy problems in transportation. Ian will continue his transportation law practice at Conlin Bedard advising and representing shippers, carriers, transportation authorities, governments and industry associations dealing with federal air, rail and marine law and policy issues.

"As a firm focused on federal regulatory law, we are delighted to have someone with Ian's expertise and background in transportation to better meet our clients' needs," said Ben Bedard of Conlin Bedard LLP. "For Ian's existing clients, this joining of forces means that he will be able to better serve them with ready access to our deep bench of experienced regulatory and litigation lawyers focused on federal law," Bedard said.

Prior to joining Conlin Bedard, Ian practiced in a boutique transportation law firm he established in 2007 following his successful federal government career. Ian brings 29 years of experience as a lawyer in transportation and as an executive within Transport Canada, the Canadian Transportation Agency, the Canadian Air Transport Security Authority and the Canada Transportation Act Review. In 2009, Ian was appointed a part-time

Member of the Transportation Safety Board of Canada, a position he will hold until his term ends in April of this year.

Conlin Bedard LLP is pleased to be able to offer our clients with the enhanced level of service made possible by Ian's arrival.
